Career T.E.A.M. CEO announces 2010 will focus on development of online training solutions.

North Haven, Connecticut January 2011-

Christopher Kuselias, CEO of Career T.E.A.M. will focus on the development of online training solutions in 2011. Online training is becoming the most common trend of learning in today's world. The skeptical thoughts existing about the concept of online classrooms are becoming extinct. The value of a live, instructor-led training experience is truly undeniable. This scenario can easily be created with today's technology in the 21st century. The webinar is a concept in which the trainer can share their desktop with the students who could see everything happening on their screens. Then, the trainer walks the students through the training process. There are new tools like gotomeeting and webex screen sharing, which can be used as a Virtual Classroom using Desktop Sharing by both trainer and students and anyone on the chat could be given the access the trainer's desktop which results in an ideal situation. This situation can provide a result that is even better than an in-class experience where the trainer would have to personally come over and help you with a problem.

Career T.E.A.M. trainers are accomplished instructors, who have the skills to keep their students involved and engrossed so they can retain the material in an online training program that provides each business with the highest return of their investment.
